

2025–2026 Content Roadmap

Futures First Entertainment · Internal Use Only · Confidential

2025–2026 Slate Overview

The studio's confirmed slate for the remainder of 2025 and full year 2026 consists of twelve titles across five genres. Production budgets total $1.4B with a projected combined box office target of $5.2B.

Sci-Fi leads the slate with four titles, including a direct sequel to Stellar Run (working title: Stellar Run: Ascent) confirmed for Q4 2026. The studio has deliberately reduced its Comedy pipeline to one title pending the results of the genre review commissioned following Q1 2025 underperformance.

Stellar Run Franchise Strategy

Following Stellar Run's $820M theatrical performance and sustained streaming engagement, the studio has greenlit a three-film franchise plan. The sequel will expand the universe introduced in the original, with the same director (Ava Chen) and core cast confirmed to return.

The franchise strategy includes a companion streaming series planned for 2026 to maintain audience engagement between theatrical releases, targeting the 18-34 demographic that drove Stellar Run's viral moment.

Genre Investment Rebalancing

The studio's 2026 investment allocation has been revised in light of Q1 2025 performance:

- Sci-Fi: increased from 22% to 35% of total production budget
- Action: maintained at 28%
- Drama: increased from 18% to 22% (high ROI per dollar)
- Thriller: maintained at 15%
- Comedy: reduced from 17% to 0% pending genre review completion

This rebalancing reflects evidence-based investment aligned with observed audience demand and returns data from 2024-2025 releases.